Shaping the next part of the journey:

Bentley Motors and Graf von Faber-Castell to launch exclusive new collection of writing instruments.

Stein (September 2019) – a unique partnership is continuing its journey: Bentley Motors and Graf von Faber-Castell will reveal their new series for the “Graf von Faber-Castell for Bentley” collection this autumn. A passion for unrivalled craftsmanship and unmistakable design unite these two brands and by embodying the focus that both companies place on using exquisite natural materials, these new writing instruments of individually grained ebony combine a design that is as incomparable as it is functional.

Timeless elegance that is distinctive and highly individual: when pristine elements such as wood are crafted using sophisticated techniques, the resulting design holds a special allure. And it is, above all, such precision-crafted sustainable veneers in the interior of a Bentley that give them their highly individual aesthetic. Graf von Faber-Castell shares these values with its British partner: The maker of luxury writing instruments, located in Stein by Nürnberg, has always placed great emphasis on artistic workmanship and select natural materials. For this reason, precious woods play a prominent role, as their grain makes for a unique design and haptic. This is what gives the pen its unmistakable look and feel.

The fountain pen, rollerball pen and ballpoint pen in the new “Graf von Faber-Castell for Bentley” series, available from 1 September, all guarantee an exceptional writing experience. The barrel of the pens are made of sable black ebony – one of the most opulent and hardest of precious woods in the world – and are meticulously crafted by Graf von Faber-Castell. The metal parts on all of the writing instruments are platinum plated. The fountain pens also feature an 18-carat gold magnum nib. Its iridium tip delivers a smooth and refined writing experience and to ensure each nib is of outstanding quality, every single one is individually “run in” by hand. Producing a showpiece of this calibre requires the passion for precision and technical know-how of a master craftsman. It takes over one hundred steps, most of which are completed by hand, until the nib finally achieves the perfect balance of hardness, tension and elasticity. This is why writing with this exclusive fountain pen is such an inimitable experience.

The dynamic styling of these pens is finished with Bentley’s iconic design elements: the cap is embellished with the signature knurling and Bentley “B”, while the front and end pieces are decorated with filigree knurled rings with the world-famous Bentley diamond pattern.

The partnership between the German luxury brand and the British luxury car maker began in 2018. Since then a limited edition collection celebrating Bentley's 100th anniversary has been launched in addition to the initial jointly developed series of writing instruments. The new "Graf von Faber-Castell for Bentley" ebony series will be available from 1 September. The series features a fountain pen (18-carat magnum bicolour gold nib in M, F, EF, B) for EUR 1,190; rollerball pen for EUR 780; and twist ballpoint pen for EUR 680. All pens come with their own elegant gift box.
